Project drives road safety messaging home

National Road Safety Week was marked on the Project with a range of promotional events to support the DRIVE So Others Survive (SOS!) campaign.

The campaign invited all road users to share the road responsibly, protect vulnerable road users, particularly those who work on roads to assist and protect us, and finally to remember those who have died or been injured on the road network.

Known more recently as the Yellow Ribbon Campaign, Road Safety Week is supported by not-for-profit organisation Safer Australian Roads and Highways (SARAH) Inc.

JKC Project Director John Bramley said SARAH's backing of the "Vision Zero" road safety strategy, a philosophy that eventually no one will be killed or seriously injured within the road transport system, aligned with the Project's values.

"At JKC, we've adopted the Incident and Injury Free philosophy, which challenges the status quo that incidents and injuries at work are 'part of the job'," John said.

"With safety as our number one value we are proud to support this important campaign."

The Project held a series of road safety-focused toolbox talks, posters were placed around offices and crib rooms at Bladin Point, and workers were reminded of their road safety responsibilities through visual messages on the Project buses on the afternoon journey home.

More than 500 yellow ribbons were also distributed across the workforce.
